T. C. Revives Honor Society After 16 Years

For the first time in 16 years, TCHS revived a society for those students who maintain a 3.3 scholastic average, and who rank high in leadership, character, and service. Those are the requirements for the National Honor Society.

The first members were 22 seniors who were initiated into the society on Nov. 6, 1969. The program, which included a candlelighting ceremony, was directed by Mr. and Mrs. Hardin the sponsors. The Rev. John Rierson presided as guest speaker along with a faculty of five teachers.

At the beginning of second semester, plans were made for membership addition, which would include juniors. The second initiation was held on Feb. 16, 1970.

After receiving her key, Priscilla Barnhart lights the candle as another step in the ceremony.

T.C. Starts New Clubs in '70

The newly acquired "Bleacher Bums" added more pep and spirit to the Tell City cheering section. They are known for their cunning and cutting yells.

"Apple High"

The Journalism Dept. was really "with it" throughout the year. The "Marksman" remained a biweekly but spot color was used for the first time in the "Big Red" sectional edition of the paper. School culminated with a six page edition of the "Marksman" honoring the Senior Class of 1970.

On Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays class discussions were held, leaving Thursdays and Fridays as workshop days for yearbook and newspaper assignments.

The 1970 yearbook staff was designated by Mr. McCartin and given the instruction to include more candid shots to show what TCHS is really like. The yearbook was helped greatly by the ever-faithful Mr. Dougan.

Yearbook Editors-in-Chief, Sharilyn Flaherty, (R) and Rachel LaGrange, were very instrumental in producing the finished product of the '70 yearbook.

Terry Jarboe and Mark Heitkemper made many a journey to the T.C. News to do the paste-up for the Marksman bi-weekly newspaper.

Yearbook Editor, Rachel LaGrange, is in the driver's seat ready to direct the '70 yearbook staff on their journey of recording the happenings of the 69-70 school year.

Bill Walk Portrays Prof. Hill

The "Music Man" was presented on March 12, 13, 14. It was the third straight musical presented at TCHS for many years. In 1968 "Mr. Crane of Sleepy Hollow" was performed and last year the musical was "Oklahoma."

The main leads for the "Music Man" were Bill Walk and Lisa Lawalin. It was a story of a traveling salesman who could not read music or play an instrument. But, by dishonest means, he fooled his customers and transformed the dull town of River City into a singing and dancing community.

Miss June Wiggins directed this musical and presented acting awards to the following: Bill Walk, Lisa Lawalin, Susan Bruce, Sharilyn Flaherty, Mary Stephen and Parvin Price.

Professor Hill, Bill Walk, sings out to the townspeople of the 'trouble' in River City.

Eulalie Machecknie Shinn, Susan Bruce, falls into the arms of her husband, Mayor Shinn, Parvin Price, after the sudden explosion of a fire cracker.

Mary Stephen, Jr., played the part of Mrs. Paroo, Marian's mother.

Capers Swings With 'In' Tunes; Wild Costumes

T.C.H.S. Music Dept. presented its annual Tell Town Capers in the school auditorium on Sat., May 16.

Special numbers were performed from the musicals "Oliver," "Funny Girl," "Hair," "South Pacific" and "Camelot."

The feature for the program was the swing choir along with the stage band, girls' chorus, and the concert choir.

Solos were sung by Terry Ramsey, Russell Crossley, Lisa Lawalin, Jim Ryan, and Bill Walk.

The girls' barbershop quartet sings a swinging tune about going back to cotton town.

The female members of the swing choir donned the latest in outfits and discarded their shoes to get in the mood for a real swinger led by senior Sharilyn Flaherty.

Miss June Wiggins joined right in with the Swing Band to perform "Hey Jude."

Wiggins, Root,

The Bowling Club got a big change this year with three new sponsors after the retirement of Mr. Sprinkle last year. Misses June Wiggins, Norma Root, and Rachel Mooney took over the direction of the club activities.

The teams met on Thursday evenings at Blum's Lanes with the season divided into two periods. Nick Schneider's squad won the Winter division with Danny Doogs' team coming away the victor for the Spring division.

During the weeks of April 23 - May 7 the annual bowling tournament was held.

On Class Day, May 25, trophies were presented to outstanding bowlers: hi-game, Nick Schneider 224; and Vicky Canarie 207; Hi-average, Danny Doogs 164; and Debbie Schauburger 130. Awards for the most improved bowlers went to Mike Schipp and Debbie Dickman.

T.C. Perfects Grid Year, 10-0

Rick Alvey, junior fullback, is up-ended after a short gain against Princeton.

Perfect! That's the only way to describe this year's football season. The road to perfection started out rocky though as the Big Red traveled to Jasper and hung on for a narrow 19-13 win. From then on it was just a matter of how many points we'd beat the other teams by. The Marksmen finished the season at home against Huntingburg by defeating the Hunters 49-0, marking the first time in the school's history that a varsity football team had gone undefeated, 10-0 and had not been scored upon at home. The Big Red finished the season ranked 13th in the Associated Press state football poll. That's Perfection!

The 1969-70 Marksmen compiled the most impressive record in many a year, as they completed the regular season 17-3 and 20-4 for the year.

Picked as the favorite going into the Sectional, the Big Red lived up to expectation by defeating South Spencer 73-69 and Dale 94-45 in the championship game. The 94 points scored against the Aces was the highest point production for the Marksmen this year, as well as many years in the past. This marked the third straight year the Marksmen have gone to the regional. Regional action saw TC hopes dashed in the afternoon game by Oakland City, 57-48.

Eng. Language Skills Develop

Bartender Clay Ewing and Coroner Dean Blandford star in this class room production of "Bargain." Mr. McCartin's freshman English class staged this mock trial after completing the short story of the same title.

Mrs. Kramer holds the attention of her sophomore English class during a group discussion of Ibsen.

Senior Literature class is not all hard work. Miss Mooney's students, led by Mike Devillez, do take a little time off to tease the teacher.

Communication

The English curriculum at TCHS offers 4 years of language studies to the student body. Courses offered are Senior Comp and Literature, Speech, Journalism with Grammar and Literature required the first three years of school.

This year the senior comp classes were concerned with various kinds of composition and an attempt to apply everyday situations to writing. Senior literature studied English writers. Freshman, sophomore and junior English studied the finer parts of grammar. Mr. McCartin's freshman lit. class had a mock trial covering the results of the short story "Bargain." The jury was trying to discover whether or not the main character in the story was guilty or not guilty.

Junior literature classes discussed American literature from the colonial period to present times.

In October a workshop was held in which Mr. Donald A. Seybold, assistant director of IU Curriculum Study Center, spent 2 afternoons discussing composition. Cannelton High School teachers also participated in the workshop.

Senior Tom Oberhausen leads a panel discussion on Capital Punishment in Speech Class.

Girls Gain Kitchen Know-how

These sophomore girls, Debbie Laflin and Carolyn Herrmann, are planning for the future by learning to prepare foods in Home Economics Class.

Delores Chapman takes the cheese slices she needs for her cooking project in Home Ec.

Kathy Miley plans to expand her wardrobe by making her start in Home Economics.

Business Classes Prepare Students For Future Jobs

The importance of proofreading is stressed in Typing III. Senior Micki Talley checks the content of a letter for accuracy.

Linda Devillez, Jr., perfects her shorthand through practice.

Sandy Schauburger and Elaine Young, Sophs., introduce guest speaker, Mr. Walter Graves, to Mrs. Davis, General Business instructor, and her class.

Gov't. Classes

Ben May, sr., awaits his sentence after being found guilty of inciting a riot, in first semester's trial.

Participate in Mock Trials

"This court is now in session . . . I think."

It was the year of the government trials. In both first and second semester government classes, mock trials were held, and were the highlight of the curriculum. The trials dealt with such problems as rioting and the selling of drugs. The trials were staged so the students could learn the procedures of the courts first hand.

In other government classes, the students played games! The name of one particular game was Dangerous Parallel. This was a foreign relations game patterned after the daily interaction of various nations of the world. In this game there were no winners, the goal was only to keep peace without war.

The Economics Division of this department was also very busy. The students formed corporations, studied the stock market, and planned various kinds of budgets. Many of their studies were based on lectures and talks from visiting speakers.

Judge Russell Crossley listens as Darla Turner testifies in the second semester trial.

Citizenship teacher, Mr. Murrey Pride, explains the need for the Citizenship course to his class of Freshmen.

Girls Invade "Man's" World

Raymond Loch, soph., learns how to operate technical machinery safely in Metal Shop.

Betty Watkins, soph., is one of the several girls to learn the art of mechanical drawing this year. Although surrounded by only male students, she seems to be able to concentrate on her project.

In this Metal Shop class, seniors Jim Blue and Bruce Cotton are hard at work. Hard work and a little clowning make any class interesting.

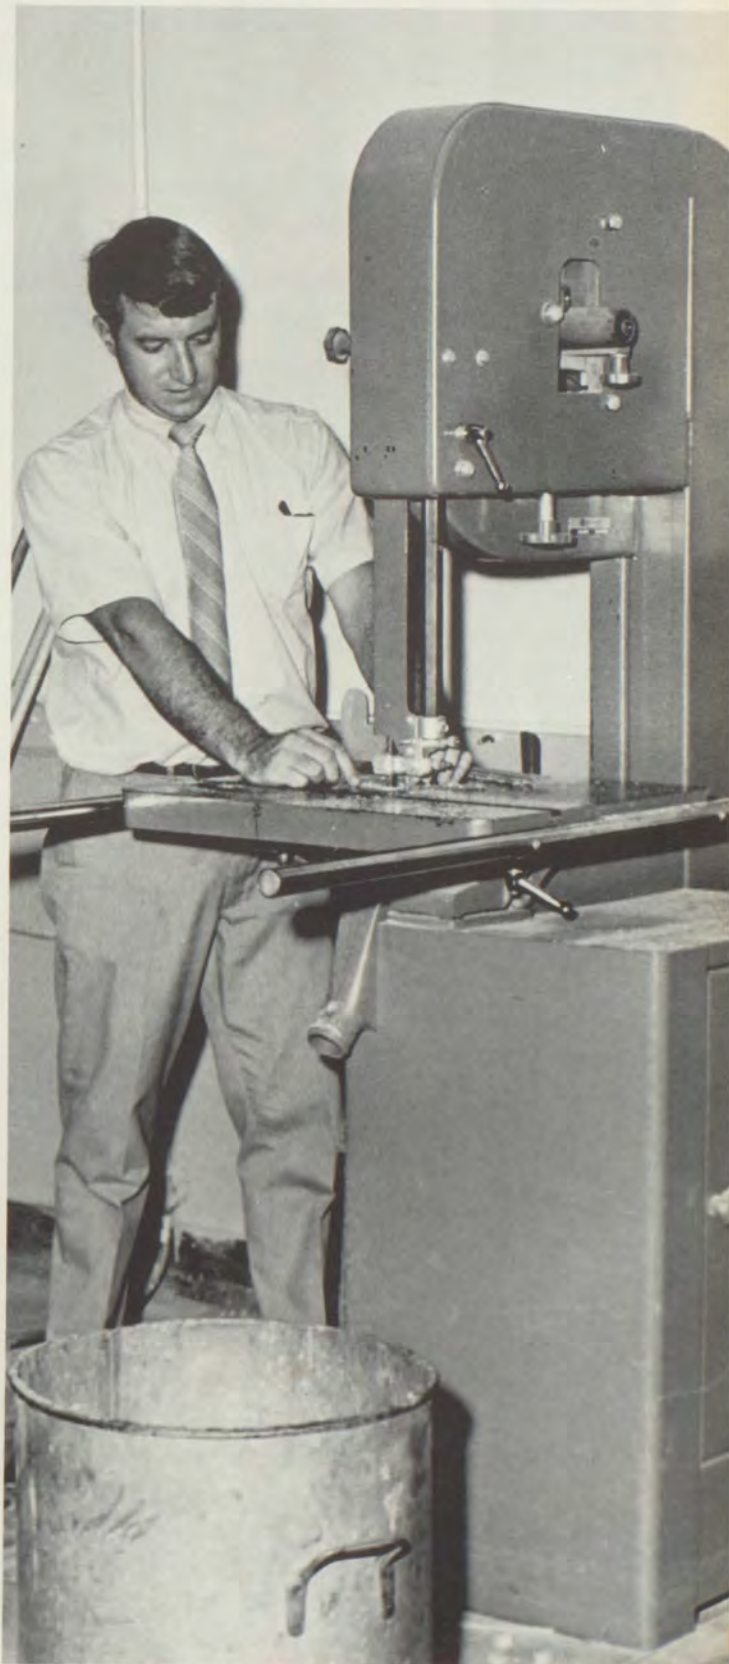

by Tackling Mech. Drawing

1970 witnessed the entrance of the fair sex into the man's world of vocational education by enrolling in a mechanical drawing course.

This year, many Industrial Arts subjects were offered. Among these were Woodworking, Metalworking, Electronics and Mechanical Drawing.

In the Mechanical Drawing classroom, the drafting students spend most of his time working at the drawing table doing assigned problems. He uses equipment, instruments and methods that will produce precision work. A portion of the class time is used for group instruction, but most of the time individual help is given. Students are required to have Mechanical Drawing before taking Advanced Woodworking or Advanced Metalworking at T.C.H.S., since an understanding of drawing, planning and blueprint reading is necessary to do highly skilled work in these areas.

Driver's Ed. Causes Health Problems

Student driver, Richard Fischer, is calm and collected as he takes a tour of Tell City during a lesson.

Mr. Talley's Health classes get all "Wrapped up" in their assignment in first-aid.

Mr. Moffitt nearly has a heart attack as one of his better driver-training students attempts to park.

Phys. Ed. Lets Frosh Unwind

Creativity Is the Artist's Key to Mind Expansion

During a study of advertising, Chris Watts, Terry Jarboe, and Cameron Lahee are hard at work. They were assigned the task of making up their own original ads using parts of ads from popular magazines.

ADMINISTRATION

Administration Sets New Ideas for Tell City

Mr. Thrasher, principal, and Mr. Stenftenagel, assistant principal, directed the school with constant supervision and enforced the rules and regulations which are set by the school board.

The school board members of T.C.H.S. are Mr. Jim Roos, Dr. Fred Smith, and Mr. Chick Borders, the newest member. Grady Swadely is the Superintendent.

The school received a 3.5 rating from the North Central Evaluation Team in 1969. It was decided that the sophomores and juniors will receive new lockers in the summer of 1970 due to the recommendations made by this committee.

The Guidance Department consists of Mr. Walk, Mr. Lowe, Mr. Roos and Mr. Hardin. These men are helping to guide our students to a better future. They are always striving to advise the students to choose the correct studies.
