Craig Damin put in many hours of work with other student council members preparing for the Winter Dance.

Our academic excitement is evident everywhere! Mr. Stewart dismounted from his horse and led Tomi Jo Utley in a jig around the gym at the first annual Academic Pep Rally.

Branching out from orginal Winter Dance attire, Rory Kramer and Ross McEntarfer were among the many in attendance.

The Night was Right

On a windy September evening Tell City High School hosted its annual football homecoming. On this particular Friday the 13th, the court gathered in the girl's gym before the big event for pictures and last minute primping. From there, the underclassmen rode in style over to Legion Field in Derek Sitzman's Aero van. Senior candidates were chauffeured in convertibles to the field where they made a lap around the track for all the spectators to see.

Once the homecoming court had arrived, things were ready to roll. The crown bearers led the way down the 50yard line, through red and white balloon trees, followed by the rest of the court. Finally the senior nominees waltzed down the field, taking their turn in the spotlight. Suspense was extreme as announcers, Casey Pierrard and Kate Ziegelgruber, revealed who the student body had chosen. Steven George and Lita Ramsey became the 2002 Football Homecoming

Pride is Back

Whether it's getting pumped up for a sectional or celebrating a victory, the pep sessions ended the school day with spirit.

With the coming of the new principal, Mr. Stewart, came a renewed sense of pride in the cocurricular activities of Tell City High School.

Upon entering the Bryan Taylor Sports Arena or the auditorium, students were met with the sounds of the school song and chants such as "We are T.C." and "Go Big Red". The classes also competed for the coveted Spirit Jug. The loudest class with the most spirit during the week was awarded the Spirit Jug.

Spirit and pride were also shown in the dress up days. Fans supported the groups by donning togas, knee socks, and even duct tape. The class who had the most students dress up gained the most spirit points, pushing them closer to the jug.

Early in the year, a contest determined the best decorated class hall. Because all of the halls were equally adorned with spirit, students were allowed to leave school ten minutes early.

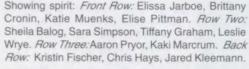

Spirit, pride, and tradition were widely encouraged and practiced by the students. Kaki Marcrum remarked, "I think that spirit is more popular because a lot of our teams did better this year. I think a lot of the spirit this year came from Mr. Stewart too."

Attack on Iraq

At 8:00 PM on Monday, March 17, President George W. Bush gave the Iraqi dictator, Saddam Hussein, a 48-hour ultimatum. He and his family were to leave Iraq, rid the country of all nuclear, biological, and chemical weapons, and let U.S. officials establish a democratic government system. Unfortunately, Hussein did not step down and the war with Iraq began with a strike on Baghdad exactly 48 hours after Bush's initial warning.

Students were on Spring Break when the conflict began. "I was glad that the United States was taking action to protect its citizens and the citizens of other countries, but I didn't want to see lives lost," was one student's initial reaction. Ross McEntarfer responded, "The war against a tyrannical regime provoked mixed feelings, but I feel that the downfall of such an oppressive totalitarian will make the world a better place." Heath Young, expressing his feelings about some citizens' lack of support, commented, "I was disappointed with some of the people in America not supporting the troops and undermining their reasons for fighting."

Out of the 403 students that were surveyed, 64 percent stated that they knew someone serving in the military with the war effort. Seventy percent of the students surveyed stated that they supported America's efforts.

At school students showed their support by having a red, white, and blue day. Also, a "necessity" drive was sponsored by the student council. Students brought in toothpaste, magazines, toilet paper, stationary, shampoo, and other items that were sent to Kuwait. A few students wrote letters to the military members and received responses.

A "Sweet" Night

After coming home from a dance, teens say a number of things to their parents. "We really cut a rug!" or "We danced the night away!". Students came home from the winter dance this year saying, "We blew a fuse!" Just as the crowd, food, and music were picking up, the power went out in the gym. Ten minutes passed before the dance was up and running again.

Despite the blown fuse, the Student Council, who sponsored the dance, agreed that a good time was had by all. Candyland served as the theme. Just after walking through the graham cracker castle, attendees crossed over the gumdrop pass and onto the dance floor that was speckled with

The Marksman Round-Up

At 8 AM on a Friday in late September, students filled the Bryan Taylor Sports Arena instead of reporting to their usual first period class. Curiosity was written across many faces as they caught their first sight of the red barn nestled in the corner of the gym, constructed by the construction process class, and the hay bales that were scattered across the gym. They were about to be attendees of the first annual Academic Pep Rally at Tell City High School. The rally, entitled The Marksman Round-Up, was sponsored by the Student Council. It had been widely advertised as a part of the Renaissance program which debuted this year in an attempt to encourage academics as well as other cocurricular activities. Yet the actual events that were about to take place were still a mystery to staff and students.

As the rally began, a country song blared, students were encouraged to "get rowdy" with signs held by student council members, and Mr. Stewart charged in on a quarter-horse. The arena erupted with cheers and Mr. Stewart hopped off his horse and spontaneously performed a jig with freshman Tomi Jo Utley. "That was funny and totally unexpected," said Amanda Fenn, a junior who witnessed the event. After his wild arrival, Mr. Stewart took his place with Mr. Carney to hand out the awards.

A plethora of awards were given. ranging from outstanding academic achievements, We the Youth participation awards, to academic performance awards for special education. Fenn also said, "It was a nice surprise to see recognition for academics as well as sports." Steven Morey, Kaki Marcrum, and Kristen Alvey received the coveted awards for accomplishing a 4.0 for every semester of their high school career. In between the awards, country music blared, five female staff members performed a routine to the song "These Boots are Made for Walking", and a special serenade was sung by Mr. Whitaker, Mr. Bishop and friends.

The first ever Academic Pep Rally at Tell City High School was a success! The junior class won the competition as to which grade could get the rowdiest and be the loudest. Pride and Tradition was evident throughout the school during spirit week with Wednesday being dedicated to tube sock day, Thursday was pajama day, and Friday, due to popular demand, was toga day. The spirit week was followed by a pep session in the Bryan Taylor Sports Arena at the end of the day to prove just how much spirit we had. The homecoming escorts, attendants, and the Queen and King candidates were introduced by the pep session emcee, Rory Kramer. Prior to the homecoming ceremony, the court gathered at Danny Bolin Photography Studio for the traditional pre-homecoming pictures. After posing for pictures, the court was dismissed to reconvene at the p.e. gym for final preparation before the big night. Homecoming festivities were held in between the J.V. and Varsity games. The court was introduced by Student Council member, Michael Daum as they made their way through a brass arch that was decorated with a Valentine's theme. The student body voted by secret ballot and selected as their Queen and King, Carrie Clayton and Jared Taul. Once Upon a Time

On April 26th, many students spent the day getting ready for the prom. Boys picked up their tuxes and their dates' flowers. Girls got manicures and had their hair done.

When all was prepared, couples and groups headed to their favorite restaurants. At 8:00 PM prom attendees gathered at Tell City's Schergen's Center to dance the night away.

The music was provided by a DJ from Indianapolis. Dancers were also entertained by a huge screen that projected snapshots of the festivities and music videos.

Out of the Ordinary

"All the nights of endless studying and lack of sleep just to get an 'A' on that test have all paid off. Wait a minute. I'm talking about the wrong Class of 2003. All of those days of coming to class half asleep and coasting through classes have all paid off," Steven Morey began his valedictory speech.

The Class of 2003 was indeed one out of the ordinary. Having only eighty-four students to receive diplomas made it the smallest class to graduate in over twenty-five years.

After three weeks of monsoon-like rainfall, the night sky was clear for the commencement ceremony on Friday, May 23.

Several seniors spoke at graduation. Phillip Lawalin, class president, welcomed the teachers, students, families, and community members. Lita Ramsey, treasurer, and Michael Daum, vice-president,

Our Marksmen players agreed that hard work was the key this season. The team spent their summer lifting weights, doing intensive speed and strength workouts, having seven-on-seven games, and having passing sessions in preparation for the 2002 season.

According to Coach Tim Johnson, the team had a good year overall. He stated that having lost many key players last year they had big shoes to fill and did a nice job of it.

Thomas Borders, the Marksmen tight end and quarterback, said, "It was hard to establish consistency. We had the same starting offense only two games in a row." Also by mid-season, there were a fairly large number of injuries.

Rory Kramer, also a quarterback, affirmed that the team had their best games against Mt. Vernon and Paoli, playing both games with a strong offense. The Marksmen finished the season 4-5.

Overcoming it All

Sunny skies, huge hills, and many miles are just some of the obstacles that the boys cross country team endured this year.

Starting their season off on August 31st in Boonville, they were led by a new coach, Lee Chesnut. The boys were ready to run with the season ahead.

The team had practice in the mornings and evenings in the summer putting about forty five miles on their shoes per week. When school started the boys were having practice from 3:15 PM to 4:45 PM, not running as many miles, but still putting in lot of hard work.

The team had little experience with only four returning runners including Zac Hartz, Heath Young, Jared Kleemann, and Michael Kleeman. They were determined to make the best of their season. Coach Chesnut made the remark, "We progressed throughout the year but it was a learning year for everyone."

Even though the boys didn't have an overall winning record, they were very proud of their achievements for the year. Hartz made the statement, "We had a rebuilding year, but by the end of the season, I think that we had turned a few heads."

Surpassing Expectations

Starting their season off with a different twist, two weeks before the first race, the runners joined New Directions Aerobic Classes instructed by Katie Fields. In addition to the aerobics class three days a week in the morning, practice was held in the afternoon.

The cross country girls first meet was August 31st at Boonville. Their season started off a little shaky but ended up with a successful 12th place finish at semi-state on October 26th.

The girls got along well, not only in the race but also off the course. One of the traditions before meets was to go to Subway to eat lunch. The team had a regular routine before meets. They started with stretching and a warm-up jog, then on to aerobics, the motivational talk from Coach Beckort and ended with a prayer.

On an average, practices during the week would last from 3:20 PM to 5:00 PM. The girls put in an average of thirty miles per week. Practices were relaxed with a lot of joking and fooling around, but the team was serious when there was work to be done. On race days, everyone was serious and focused. "We knew it was the time to show our competition what we had to give," said Stefanie Krueger.

The girls ended their season with a victorious record of 103-12. "We were very pleased with our performance and happy to make it to semi-state," said Kasey Leinenbach.

Although the girls fell a little short of reaching their goal for the top, they surpassed many other expectations. Coach Beckort made the remark, "This has been one of the best years I've ever experienced with girls' Cross Country and I wouldn't change anything about this vear."

Seniors, Daum, Phillip Simpson, Rory Kramer, Ross McEntarfer, and Zach Sanders and Junior Risse contended for the top varsity spots.

The 2002 season was challenging for the Lady Marksmen as they finished the year 6-22. Blair and Brooke assumed the leading roles of the team.

Blair led five games and took the girls to their first victory at South Spencer. Brooke led four games, leaving Kristin to lead one.

Although the team did not reach as many goals as they had hoped to, they still had fun.
When asked why she is proud to be on the golf team, junior Blair Hammack said, "I get to support and represent Tell City High School."

With most of last year's starters returning to play for the Marksmen, the team was looking to achieve bigger and better goals. "We were excited about this season because we knew we had a really good shot at winning," said junior Dustin Jefford.

Before every match the boys did their traditional pump up cheer. Michael Daum, Zach Sanders, and Steven George led the charge at the three singles positions. Derek Sitzman and Russel Clayton, together with Sean and Howard Gebhard, rounded out the doubles teams. Dominated by seniors and juniors, the Marksmen played to a 19-10 season! The team was pleased to count among their accomplishments a second place finish at the annual Washington Invitational Tourney. "It was our best season since I was a freshman," said junior Ryan Risse. And as a personal achievement, Zach Sanders took first place at the number two singles spot in the PAC Tourney. "I had a good time." said Sanders.

With all the varsity players returning except one, this years team had a lot of experience. The team consisted of seven freshmen, three sophomores, two juniors, and three seniors. Despite the wide variety of ages, the tennis team bonded quickly. "It was fun and I enjoyed being around all the girls," said freshman Amanda Alvey. The girls cheered each other on at each match. The team got along well with the coaches. "Tennis was a lot of fun, especially teasing coach," said senior Lesli Pund.

Even though they played in difficult weather conditions, the group of athletes had a 7-7 season. Although the athletes had an experienced team, bad draws and new settings contributed to their seventh place finish in the PAC. The team failed to advance in the sectional, also. Despite their disappointing season ending, the girls had fun this season. Determined to the End

The boys' basketball program had a rough year. Ben Harpenau, a starting junior, said that this year was mainly a rebuilding one. "It was a learning experience," he said. Howard Gebhard, also a junior, said, "I think we struggled this year because of the team's inexperience." With only two seniors on the team and a starting lineup that included two sophomores, the team was indeed very young.

The varsity team's 1-22 record indicated just how tough the year was. Their only win was against the Cannelton Bulldogs. Ross McEntarfer, a starting senior remarked, "It was hard to keep a positive attitude when we lost so many games."

The team ended their season in the second round sectional game. They played with determination against the Crawford Country Wolfpack. It was an outstanding game, as Tell City led the first three quarters. They ended up losing 64-

The junior varsity's record was 7-13. Russel Clayton, a sophomore stated, "Our team had a good year, and many of us hope to help out the varsity team next year." Sean Gebhard, a junior added that the team had its best game against Paoli. The Marksmen were losing the entire game and came back to win in the fourth quarter.

The freshmen team had a fairly successful year with a season record of 7-10. Their conference record was 4-3. Adam Saalman stated that the team's most successful game was against South Spencer. Although the team lost the game, they came back from a 24 point deficit and lost by a mere two points.

Maurice Harpenau retired from the head coaching position this year. He had been coaching for 22 years. In his closing remarks, he said, "I have had the best of both worlds. I have coached teams that won nearly every game and teams that hardly won a game."

"WORK HARD"

"After breaking from a huddle, the girls' basketball team members always yell: work hard," says Coach Lyons. "Working hard," was the theme for the girls basketball team.

The team began conditioning early in the summer. The girls came in and dedicated two days a week to improving their shots and increasing their strength. Coach Lyons said, "Playing in the summer league helped us with our fundamentals and it brought the team closer." Practice started on October 28th, and they lasted about two hours each day. Adrienne Harpenau made the comment, "The girls were great and that made practices even better."

The varsity team ended their regular season with a record of 14 and 7. The team received a bye the first round of sectional. They then played Crawford County and beat them 48 to 31. Next they faced Southridge, whom they had previously beaten. The Marksmen fell only nine points short in what was their final game of the season. The junior varsity also had a great year with a record of 13 and 4. Coach B. Alvey made the remark, "This has been the most successful season our junior varsity has ever had, and I am very proud of the girls."

The ladies got along well on the court as well as off the court. A.J. Taylor said, "Our team has great karma and our long talks about everything and anything always brought us closer." Another thing that always brought the team closer was their traditions. When they had a Saturday game they met at someone's house for breakfast. The menu always consisted of eggs, juice, and monkeybread.

"The Lady Marksmen had three goals for the season, win at least 10 games in regular season, win at least one game in sectional, and place in the top half of the conference. We accomplished all three, and we are very proud of ourselves," said Lyons.

PAC Champions!

On January 25, 2003, the boys swim team became the first boys swim team in TCHS history to win the conference title. Everyone, new and experienced contributed to an almost perfect season. With five new swimmers and only eight letter winners returning, the team meshed and performed well. The boys had two new divers, an addition to the team they have not had since the early 1990's. This helped the boys be victorious in each dual meet.

Two members of the boys team performed well enough at sectional to advance. First timer, senior Pat Labhart, dove to a stunning fourth place finish to land him a spot at regional. Junior Ryan Pfeifer had what it took to win the 100 freestyle and advance to state.

In keeping with tradition, they shaved from head to toe in preparation for sectional. Steven George added, "It was the perfect way to end my senior year of swimming, and I am glad I was part of such a wonderful team."

Chlorine: Breakfast of Champions!

Walking through the door at 6:00 AM, oldies in the air, eleven swimmers prepared to jump into the freezing water on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. The small team continued their practicing after school for two hours every day of the week.

Singing the school song before and after each meet is only one example of the many traditions the girls swim team had. Every Christmas Eve the entire team swims 40 laps of butterfly as a present from their coaches. Mike Page and Jennifer Hall. "My favorite traditions were telling our goals in the locker room before conference and sectional, and everyone showing team spirit by cheering for each other," said sophomore Katie Muenks. Other traditions include going to the Freezer at midnight and not shaving their legs throughout the season. Sammy Bekx added, "The girls on the swim team were really nice and easy to get along with."

Although the practices were grueling, with determination in their eyes, the eleven athletes managed to stick it out the entire season. Coach Page made it easier to get through practice when he sang along with the Beatles.

For having such small numbers, the girls ended up with an exciting season. At the beginning of the year each girl wrote down the goals they hoped to achieve during the swim season. Although they didn't achieve their team goal of beating Heritage Hills, many of the girls reached the individual goals they set. The team managed to snag a third place finish at conference and fifth at sectional.

season did not end up quite as well as the past couple of years, it was still a winning season with an 18-12 record.

Senior, David Doogs, led the team in the 130 lb. weight class with 39 wins and 8 losses. He made several contributions as he won Conference and Sectional, placed third in the Regional, and went on to Semi-State. He won his first round at Semi-State but did not go on to place. Junior, Zach Froehlich, also helped carry the team with his 34 wins and 8 losses. He placed second at Sectional and Conference and qualified for the Regional but was beat out in the first round.

Although the wrestling team's evident as they went to their two to two and a half hour practices every day. Their practices consisted of running, doing "buddy carries," and practicing their wrestling moves. They also had to watch and maintain their weight for their desired weight class throughout the entire season.

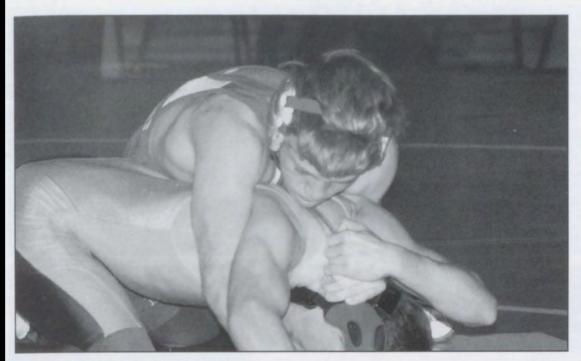

"Even though we lost several wrestlers, the team persevered and exceeded all expectations," says senior, David Doogs. "Although the team had its ups and downs, it was an enjoyable year," says head coach Mr. Johnson.

Quality, Not Quantity

Individual talent played a major role in the boys' track team's success. With nine freshmen, and only one senior, the team was very young. However, with some outstanding individuals, the team pulled victories.

Juniors Zac Hartz and Ben Harpenau, Senior Patrick Labhart, and Freshmen Kenny Saalman and Judd Brown, all placed in the top eight at the Pocket Athletic Conference last year.

When asked about the team's traditions, Hartz replied, "Our tradition is sending lots of individuals to Regional and State. It's our tradition of excellence."

Without the numbers to field many relays, the boys track team had a lot of success in personal events. Hartz dominated the distance events, Harpenau the field events, and Brown the sprinting events.

When asked about the season, Freshman Luke Alvey declared, "Our track team had our greatest victory against Perry Central." The boys won 72-51, defending the title of county champs. Winners included Brown, Hartz, Harpenau, Patrick Labhart, Jacob Labhart, Jared Kleeman, and Keisuke Kawaguchi.

Attack of the "Six Pack"

With six girls total and only two returning runners, the girls track team was in for a long season. The "six pack" of girls would not let the numbers deteriorate their attitudes. Myra Wheatley made the remark, "even though our chances are low to win a meet, we just work harder and try and improve our own personal times."

The season began around the middle of February. The girls practiced after school until five o'clock.

"Having four freshman they had to step up to the line and be competitive, and they did," said Kaki Marcrum. Christy Tempel remarked, "The best overall meet for the team was against Tecumseh because we all got personal records, and that was the most we scored against any team."

The team had two traditions that they continued throughout the season. Before a meet they would put their names on Myra Wheatley's van, and after the meet they would go out to eat. "Being such a small team we became very close and had a great year," remarked Wheatley.

Take Me Out To The Ballgame

With twelve returning lettermen, the season looked promising for the Marksmen baseball team. Also with a variety of types of players the team had a strong defense.

Even so, the Marksmen had a tough start. Derek Sitzman, a senior pitcher and shortstop, said, "We're off to a slow start. We haven't had our hitting and pitching in the same game yet." Evansville Memorial beat the Marksmen 16-1 in the first game of the season.

The team made a swift recovery two games later in a game against Evansville North. Sophomore Aaron Peter, the catcher, talked about this game. "Our most successful game was against North. We played well defensively and were also able to score runs."

Mid-season the boys had another great game against Tecumseh in May. Tecumseh was ranked 10th in the state and favored to win the Pocket Athletic Conference. The Marksmen beat the Braves 1-0.

When the team was asked about traditions, there was a unanimous response of "Hess's pep talks." Alan Hess, the senior center fielder, replied, "Yes, I say 'wah-da-ta' before we break for every game."

"Being part of a team and learning more about baseball was one of my favorite things about this season," said sophomore pitcher, Shaun Larsen. By Kate Ziegelgruber and Ashley DuPre

AISCH! WOOSTA! SLASH!

These three phenomenal phrases were created at the start of the season by second baseman, Casey Pierrard. After every outstanding play, the infielders would meet at the pitcher's mound and say either "aisch" or "woosta." "Slash" was saved for after a strikeout.

Although the varsity team started off a little rocky losing the first three games, which were all conference, the team finished up the season with a 9-13 record.

Expectations for this year's softball team were high due to the fact that the team only lost two seniors, and everyone else was returning.

Bottom: The infield gathers at the pitcher's mound to hear Coach Richardson give inspiring words.

The Lady Marksmen have two seniors, three sophomores, and the rest are juniors that make up this year's team. "Most of the losses this year were due to mental errors," added junior shortstop, Ashley Chapman.

State. Such a little word for such a huge event. When asked what her reaction to winning the state championship was, Kimberly Simpson commented, "I was very excited when our name was announced. It was so exciting."

In May, the cheerleaders began their practices for the coming season. They ran three quarters of a mile and practiced gymnastics. Later on in the month, they attended a camp in Carmel. Indiana which lasted three days.

The cheerleaders participated in many community activities. A cheer camp for girls was held in the fall. The girls performed with the Marksmen cheerleaders at the home football game on October 11th. They also adopted a family at Christmas.

Another camp for young girls was held during basketball season.

On October 26th the cheerleaders participated in their first competition. The Jamfest was an event that included some of the top cheerleading squads. They won the competition.

Regional was held at Southridge High School on November 2nd. Winning there, the squad went on to surpass Greenfield Central, last year's state champions, at the state competion.

Advanced Composition and Freshman English students fill Mr. Water's last semester at TCHS.

Mr. Waters began his first year of teaching at Tell City High School in the fall of 1970. While teaching at TCHS, he taught various English classes to all grade levels including American Literature, British Literature, and Composition, among others. He served as yearbook adviser and ran the school newspaper, The Marksmen. He was especially instrumental in developing and maintaining the Honors program.

He was a teacher to many teachers at Tell City. Mrs. Kehl reminisces, "As freshmen, my friends and I were absolutely terrified of him. We thought he was so strict." Mrs. Buckman, his classroom neighbor added, "He was always so dependable. I could rely on him for anything." Mrs. Thomas said, "His effectiveness as an English teacher will make him hard to replace."

Mr. Waters will enjoy his retirement. He is an avid UK fan and a lover of animals. He has an enormous record collection and likes trading on Ebay.

His 33 years at Tell City High School were well spent. He touched the lives of many students.

Tradition

tudying, studying, studying. That's what comes to mind when academics are talked about. Here. academics involved much more than just studying. We learned through many different methods: notes on worksheets, notes on the chalkboard, notes on the overhead projector, watching educational movies, reading novels, listening to demonstrations. The possibilities for learning were endless.

Building trades classes did projects for the school and for the community. Joe Perkins and Steven Fordyce put up some duct work.

Traditional Arithmetic

The math department has been setting many new traditions this year. For example, the six members of Advanced Placement Calculus with Mr. D. Alvey took turns bringing in doughnuts every Monday for their classmates in that particular class. The students had to go to class at 7:50 AM to start and finish their breakfast before class started at 8. This tradition was started with Doughnut Wednesday in mind. Steven Morey ate a record of nine doughnuts.

Mr. Alvey's Algebra II classes also continued the tradition of building elliptical pool tables for bonus points. A student has to build an ellipse and then Mr.

Alvey proceeds to check its accuracy by rolling a small rubber ball into the strategically placed holes. Bonus points are awarded depending on how many times the ball went where it was supposed to go.

Mr. Goffinet gave a new project to his geometry classes. They were to map out landscaping in the front of the school. This was to help the students with angles and shapes.

Mrs. Rose continued her tradition of decorating her door with colorful math sayings, trying to encourage her students about learning math.

Art Smart

Mrs.Hatfield had several different classes to teach. She taught a basic art class, a drawing class, a painting class, and a ceramics class. In her basic art class, they did drawings and paintings from magazine clippings, they worked with abstract art projects, and they made a lantern and ceramic animal out of clay. The classes tested after each unit.

The drawing class did lots of different things. They did drawings from magazine clippings and made up their own piece of work. They drew things from real life as well. In the painting class, students did things using their own imagination and magazine clippings. The students were also assigned themes. They worked on regular paper and on canvas.

In ceramics class, students were free to do what they wanted whether it was pottery or figurines. Some of the most common projects were bowls, vases, and mugs.

After taking basic art, students could take any upper level art class that they wished.

It All Adds Up

Business classes are more than just adding and subtracting numbers. The Business department ranged from a mandatory keyboarding class to Accounting.

Mrs. Marshall taught Introduction to Business where her students have learned how to do work sheets, economic business, and how to be an informed consumer. Marshall also educated students in keyboarding and accounting. "In keyboarding they learned their basic typing skills," said Marshall.

"In Accounting class you get very involved. It is one of the best classes to take because it can help you greatly," says Blair Hammack. In accounting students learned basic accounting principles such as credits, debits, and spreadsheets.

Mrs. Krieg taught Advanced Business, Career Awareness, and Keyboarding. "In both my Advanced Business and Career Awareness classes we had booths at the technology fair which was neat and exciting," stated Krieg. In Advanced Business they learned Excel Spreadsheets and charting. "Career Awareness students saw many different careers which will help them decide later what to do with their lives," said Krieg. They were also involved in distance learning projects and had guest speakers. JoAnna Keller made the remark, "Business classes are fun and they teach you a lot about reality."

Posters and Push-ups!

Stretching, push ups, running laps, swimming, and studying health and diseases are all part of the p.e. and health courses students need to take to graduate.

From laps around the gym to laps in the pool, students in p.e. work hard to get in shape for the physical fitness test in the spring. P.E. is not all hard work, though. Mr. Page also comes up with games for the P.E. classes to play. "I like to play the fun games in gym class," said freshman Rivaye Sitzman, "Mr. Page is very involved in the actions of the class." "Mr. Page makes gym fun," said freshman Don Steen.

From lectures on stress to lectures on problems caused by alcohol and drug abuse, the health classes learned about consequences of the decisions they make. The first semester class participated in the "Great American Smoke Out" project in which they made t-shirts. Erin Emerson won the prize for best designed t-shirt. "I really enjoyed designing the t-shirts because we could use any materials we wanted and creativity was a plus," said Emerson, a sophomore. Along with hands-on activities, the health classes also heard from guest speakers from the community such as, Southern Hills, and the Police Department. Junior Ashley DuPre commented, "Some of the lectures were really great and informative."

Hands On!

The vocational classes offered at this high school include health occupations, banking, IOL, building trades, heating and air conditioning, and auto mechanics.

The health occupations students learned the skills of a CNA for the extended lab at Perry County Memorial Hospital, Beverly Healthcare, and Oakwood Health Campus. Second year students who had completed their CNA were completing school-to-work rotations with respiratory and physical therapy. The first year students began second semester with final preparations for extended lab rotations.

The Marksmen Teller, a bank operated by student bank officers, offered savings accounts, Christmas accounts, loans, and check cashing. Banking students learned to work as a team to perform banking functions, to prepare financial records, and to write weekly announcements.

IOL, intensive office lab, students became proficient in Microsoft Word, Excel, Power Point, and learned basic office skills such as filing, faxing, prioritizing, and phone skills. Students spend ten weeks at a job site of their choice

The banking students operated both the main bank and the branch bank, giving out loans, cashing checks, and offering many contests throughout the year. The building trades class was building a 2000 square foot home for Bill and Nancy Ludwig. Some of the house's features were a two car garage, a large front porch, and a patio in the back. The main floor had three bedrooms, a walk in closet in the master bedroom, and a master bath with two sinks, one tub, and a shower.

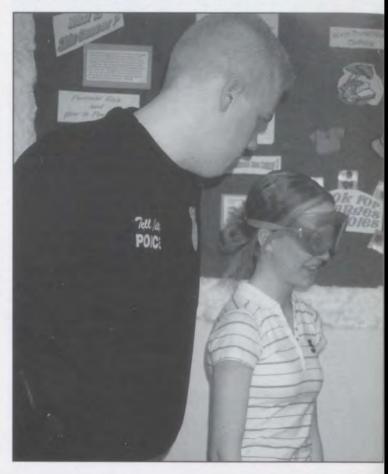

In heating and air conditioning, students learned many skills including electricity, sheet metal fabrication, welding, heating, refrigeration, and air conditioning principles. The students were also responsible for the installation and start up of the HVAC (heating ventilation and air conditioning) equipment in the annual Habitat for Humanity home and the building trade's home.

In automotive technology, juniors and seniors learned how to repair everything from changing the oil to rebuilding an engine. It was highly specialized with the use of computerized diagnostic equipment. They also repaired other student's and faculty's cars.

Express Yourself

English is not all about proper grammar; it also includes studying pivotal novels, writing several different papers, and expressing opinions and creative thoughts.

Freshmen, sophomores, and juniors all wrote at least one paper during their year in English. The freshman began the year by writing a paper about themselves. "It gave the teachers a chance to get to know us." Ashley Jefford commented. The sophomores worked on persuasive papers while the juniors composed classification and comparrison/ contrast papers.

All of the students also read many stories and books.

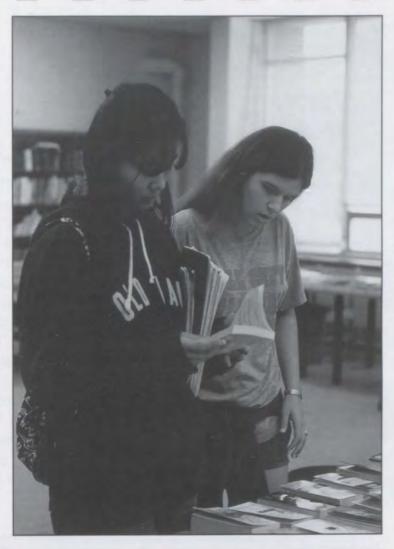

exposed to include To Kill a Mocking Bird, Of Mice and Men. "The Odyssey", and "Romeo and Juliet". Sophomores studied Night, The Old Man and the Sea, and while juniors read The Great Gatsby, The Grapes of Wrath, Huckleberry Finn, and other American works. Seniors read optional works including Jane Eyre, The Lord of the Flies, Catcher in the Rye, and A Tale Cities. Two Bonjour and Hola are common words you would hear if you were to walk in a foreign language classroom. Taking a foreign language gives students a chance to learn not only about the language, but the cultures of different countries as well. The French classes went to the distance learning room and interacted with the Signature school in Evansville. They learned about the Bohemian lifestyle by studying the play "Rent", and the opera, "Le Boheme." They also read "Les Miserables" and watched "The Three Musketeers." Mrs. Sanders taught all the French students this year and the Spanish III and IV students, while Senora George taught the Spanish I and II students. Scott Lawalin stated, "I like learning the Spanish language because America is getting more and more people in the work force. I want to be able to communicate with them." Most French students like the French language because as Ross McEntarfer likes to put it, "It is the language of love." These classes give students a chance to take a break from their normal English classes. How many times do students get to go back and learn their a, b, c's?

Si & Oui

Food, Family, and Furniture

Family and Consumer Sciences offered many class selections from Nutrition and Wellness to Child Development and from Parenting to Housing and Interiors. Mrs. Glenn taught all the classes in the department.

Students in Nutrition and Wellness learned about nutrition, serving sizes, and the Food Guide Pyramid. They also worked in the kitchens making foods, such as biscuits and lasagna. "I look forward to class everyday. Mrs. Glenn provides a fun learning environment", said sophomore Aylin Roland.

Advanced Food students did lots of cooking, including grilling out and making frozen strawberry jam.

In Child Development and Parenting students learned about the female anatomy, the growing fetus and childbirth.
During the last six weeks
students went to field sites for hands on and experience with small chees children. "They were my lass favorite part. I got to work at Bright Beginnings with child little children," said from Megan Dunn.

Adult Roles and Responsibilites consisted of important lessons on things such as buying cars, housing options, and communicating. Kacey Anson, a sophomore, said, "Comparing prices and brands was my favorite part."

In Interpersonal Relations students looked at personalities, frienship, dating, and marriage. They also made a wedding album at the end of the year.

Housing and Interiors was based on architecture and furniture. Students also did an independent project, where they got to design a room and arrange it.

As Foods 1 students watch Mrs. Glenn demonstrating making cookies, Daniel Kluender and Laura Harper know they will make gingersnaps tomorrow.

Laughing with her class is a common activity for Mrs. Glenn. There were some humorous mishaps, like the humidity in May making it impossible for the Reese cups, the class made, to dry. Many students went home with sticky hands and melted chocolate.

The Cutting Edge

and notebooks are just a few of the things that the Graphic Arts classes, taught by Mr.DeSpain, made. Graphic Arts was a class designed to help students learn more about computers and design.

DeSpain stated, "This class is a good life learning experience." The students are taught how to make banners. They learned how to make t-shirts and design stickers. The class also learned how to make forms and notepads that were given to the teachers.

"We do a lot of projects for businesses and Banners, buttons, people in the community," said DeSpain. The class works with various sports programs. They make banners for youth programs around the community, such as little league, Babe Ruth, and girls softball.

Social Studying

Geography to Government to Sociology, students are offered a variety of Social Studies classes. In Mr. Kincaid's Geography class students completed maps on places such as the Western Hemisphere and Australia. In Mrs. Kehl's World History class, the curriculum began with the Ancient World and ended with the Enlightenment in the 17th Century. "My History class required a lot of studying, but it was very interesting," said sophomore Kaycie Sabelhaus. Both Mr. Lacy and Mrs. Kehl taught U.S. History where students studied Colonial America, the Roaring Twenties, and the Industrial Revolution. Brittany Williams, a junior, said, "Mr. Lacy makes history fun!" Government was taught by Mrs. Kehl. In the class seniors learned how the government worked and specifically studied each amendment. Psychology was taught by Mrs. Schaefer. Students that took her class took personality and IQ tests, and analyzed dreams. Mr. Lacy taught Sociology where students learned about crime and deviance. marital relationships, and poverty. "The class discussions on dating were my favorite part," declared Senior Amanda Shreve.

Music to My Ears

The students of Tell City High School were offered several choices in music.

Among learning little bits of music theory, discovering interesting trivia, and perfecting their pieces, students came together each day in room 109 to enhance their music abilities.

During the basketball season, members of the pep band attended every home game, supporting the team and jamming during half time. They played famous songs such as "Louie, Louie", Labamba", and "The William Tell Overture."

In the spring, the concert band competed at an ISSMA contest. The night of April 11th, they performed at Bedford/North Lawrence and were awarded first divisions in both concert music and sight-reading.

Chorus students began their day by singing a warm up and then a round. They then began to rehearse their pieces of music. They competed at an ISSMA contest on April 12th at Gibson-Southern and recieved a divison two. They also performed with the band at two seperate concerts during the year; one before Christmas and one in the spring.

Scientific

Students were taught a variety of sciences ranging from earth science to astronomy

Earth science was taught by Mr. Johnson. The students learned about weather patterns, different types of rocks, and the planets. "I think earth science is very interesting, and Mr. Johnson makes earth science fun," says freshman Whitney DuPont.

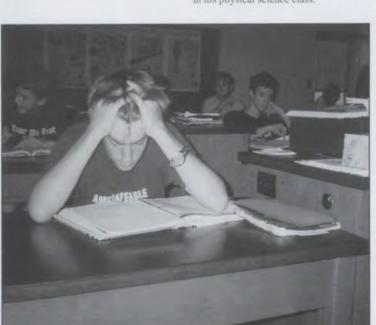

Physical science was taught by Mr. Alvey. The students learned about factor labeling, elements, and chemical bonding. They did many experiments and labs to help them learn more about the different types of outcomes in a certain problem.

Biology was taught by both Mr. Alvey and Mrs. Thomas. They learned about animals and DNA.

Chemistry was taught by Mr. Kreilein. The students learned about different types of chemical reactions, oxidation numbers, and balancing chemical equations. They did labs and vocabulary to help them understand the lessons.

Biology II was taught by Mrs. Thomas. The students learned about the processes of the body and biological procedures. "It is interesting and exciting to explore the processes of the body and nature," says junior Elizabeth Coultas.

Physics was proctored by Mr. Alvey. The class, which was originally broadcasted on the internet from the Indiana Academy at Ball State, was changed to TV broadcast later. The students learned about the laws of nature and laws of motion. "Physics is very fun and interesting. It was very different learning from tapes," says senior Steven Morey.

Chemistry II was taught by Mr. Kreilein. Chemistry II students perform labs with highly toxic chemicals and perform calculations for acids and bases, equilibrium, and redox reactions. "Mr. Kreilein did an excellent job teaching and demonstrating the process involved with stoichiometrey," says Ross McEntarfer.

Astronomy was taught by Mr. Johnson. The students learned about the universe ranging from our universe to other galaxies. They also learned about solar eclipses, and they did a planet project where the students got into groups and gave a power point presentation.

"I took astronomy and chemistry. I loved both of the classes," said junior Kate Ziegelgruber. By Kristen LeClere and Ashley Jefford hether you were interested in school spirit, traveling, community service, studying, or nursing, there was a club for you at Tell City High School. Clubs met periodically throughout the year and sponsored various event such as dances, service projects, dinners, and concerts.

Pride

SADD, led by Mr. Lacy, sponsored the SADD Halloween Dance in October. Freshman Brooke Aldridge and Steven George, a senior, dance to a slow song.

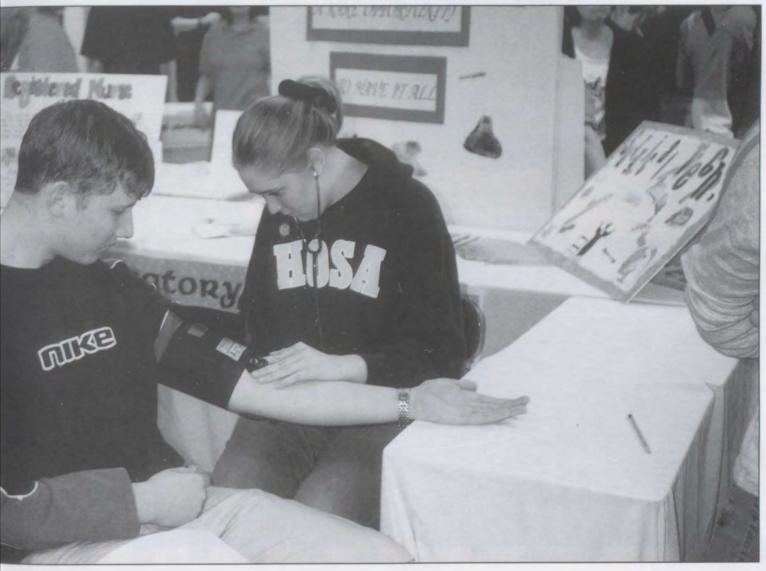

Each National Honor Society member was required to perform ten service hours. Ralee Jones and Jennifer Musick listen to ideas for service discussed at a meeting in the library.

Freshmen, Wendy Carter and Cassie Zellers, and senior, Craig Damin worked at the Student Council concession stand selling hot dogs and hamburgers at a home game against Mt. Vernon.

HOSA sponsored a health fair on March 10-14. Nathan Borho gets his blood pressure checked by Rachel Huffman.

More Than Just School Spirit

The Pep Club sponsored many different events this year along with their cheering section at sporting events. One event that stood out this year was the "Ride to Southridge." Seniors, Michael Daum, Patrick Labhart, Rory Kramer, Steven George, Alan Hess, David Doogs and Logan Terry, began their journey in the student parking lot at 4 PM. They rode their bikes from the parking lot to Southridge, a 45 minute drive. All arrived in time for the Sectional basketball game with Crawford County.

Mrs. Thomas led the Pep Club in a cookout prior to the first football game. Volunteers cooked hamburgers and hotdogs for anyone wanting to hang out before the game.

As another way to get students pumped up about sports, the club sponsored "The Couch Potato." Students, during a home football game could purchase raffle tickets. During the second quarter, a ticket was drawn out and the winner and a guest could sit on a provided couch. There, the two winners were provied with free pizza and drinks.

SKILLS FOR LIFE

The Business Professionals of America (BPA) was a national organization for students enrolled in IOL/Administrative Support.

The mission of BPA was to prepare students entering the work force by advancing leadership, citizenship, academics, and technological skills.

This year the members elected officers, designed and ordered BPA shirts, conducted a community service project, and participated in the parade for the Fall Sports Extravaganza. They also attended a Tell City Kiwanis luncheon, hosted the annual Christmas party, and traveled to Louisville, KY and IVY Tech in Evansville, IN for field trips.

BPA officers for the year were Ashley Brinksneader; president, Laura Smith; vice president, and Angela Hinton; secretary/ treasurer.

COMMUNITY SERVICE IS THE KEY

Key Club is a branch of the Kiwanis Club. Mr. Lacy and Mr. Harpenau were the advisors. Key Club held its first meeting on September fourth. At this meeting students paid their dues of three dollars to Mr. Lacy. The club elected this year's officers last year. Holding the position of President was Adrienne Harpenau.

The Key Club was involved in three main activities. During August, the Key Club worked at the Schweizer Fest selling cotton candy. They helped with the Kiwanis Club annual Fish Fry also in September. Students sold tickets in advance for five dollars each. This event was held at the 4-H Fairgrounds. Club members helped out with serving and cleaning up the meal. The Key Club also helped at Christmas with the delivering of baskets to the less fortunate. On December 21st at nine o'clock, students gathered in the high school parking lot to deliver the baskets. "Key Club is a club that is about getting involved in the community, and I think we do that pretty well," said Mr. Lacy.

Friends Helping Friends in Need

"Our club grew from fourteen members last year to thirty members this year," Mrs. Hess said when asked about the Advocates Club. Because of the enormous growth, the club got to participate in one activity each month. From hayrides to roller skating, the members had fun at each event. "Being in advocates is fun and exciting because you get to spend time with really cool people, and do many fun activities," said first time member Erin Mahoney. The Advocates helped to take special needs students to the Christmas Dance and Prom.

There were no dues to pay, but the club did two fundraisers to raise money for their service projects. They took three angels off a local angel tree to help families with their Christmas.

J'aime le Circle de Français (1 like French Club)

Fundraisers for the trip to Europe, challenges with the Spanish Club, and French Cuisine were some highlights of French Club this year. This was the last school year that students had to raise $2,300.00 for the Europe trip this coming summer. They stayed busy with chicken dinners, Christmas novelty sales, and pizza and cookie sales. The French Club dominated the Spainsh this year in the annual soccer match at the Ranger Station. They were also victorious in the first annual field day competion held in the band parking lot.

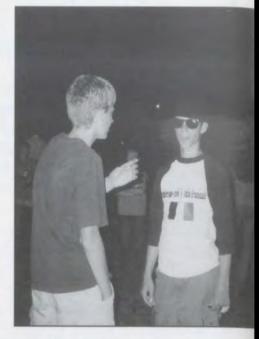

The French Club officers were very active this year planning out strategies on how they were going to beat the Spanish Club. They were also in charge of leisure activities like ice skating and going to Kentucky Kingdom.

The 2002-2003 French Club officers were: Amanda Fenn and Ross McEntarfer, co-Presidents, Thomas Borders, secretary, Alicia Ouelette, treasurer, and Casey Pierrard, acitivities coordinator.

An organization dedicated to staying alcohol and drug free consisted of 130 members this year. In order to qualify for this club, students must pay a fee of $3.00 at the start of the year and be a strong advocate of not drinking and driving. This year, the SADD club offered three big events in which to participate. They started the year off with the annual SADD Halloween dance and ended the year with a live music extravaganza known as the SADD Fest. Mr. Lacy provided the

Rockin' the Dome with Rhythmic Fusion

"D-O-M-E!!!! The goal of the Marching Marksmen," Cody Cail, a freshman trumpet player said, "was really awesome. Just walking out there and seeing all of those people. I got cold chills."

The band knew that reaching this goal would be no easy feat. Starting as early as May, they sweated in the blistering sun for hours on end. Regardless of the extreme temperatures and the grueling practice schedule of two weeks of band camp (9-5 Monday through Friday and 6:00 - 8:00 Tuesday and Thursday after the start of school), the ensemble persevered and learned their show, "Rhythmic Fusion" in record time.

"Rhythmic Fusion" consisted of four exciting tunes: Malambo, Adios Nonino, Unchained Melody, and Power House. These selections along with the instruction of Mr. Reasoner, Mr. Mulzer, Mrs. Kehl, Mr. Hebeison, Ms Gebhard, and Ms Hawkins, helped them crescendo into "Box Four".

The 64 members took first in their class and best percussion at every invitational except one. They placed 3rd at the district contest in Jasper, 5th at regional contest in Jeffersonville, and 8th place at the state contest at the RCA Dome in Indianapolis.

When asked what makes her proud of this marching season, junior clarinet section leader Alecia Oullette replied, "It was a very successful season. We've done a lot better than what we have in the past few years."

It is safe to say that the Marching Marksmen will never forget that it takes hard work, dedication, and a "WE" environment to "retain" the pride and tradition of TCHS.

Honor in Our School

National Honor Society headed many volunteer events this year. The organization collaborated with the Student Council in the annual coat drive in October. Members of NHS donated personal care items for a group sponsored by the Girl Scouts. In December, many members of this group volunteered their time and participated in the Southwestern Indiana Mental Health Association Gift Lift. This activity involved the members going to Wal-Mart with lists of wants and needs from different, anonymous individuals and purchasing $60 worth of Christmas presents for these unfortunate adults and children.

Not only did this group do many projects together, but all members were required to acquire ten hours of community service once inducted into this organization. Many of the students did things such as babysitting at the elementary school during Parent Teacher Organization meetings, tutoring, and cleaning up at St. Paul's.

Overall, NHS helped the community in many ways and showed their pride in TCHS.

The Spanish are Coming!

The Spanish Club was involved in many activities. The first thing on their agenda was to nominate the club officers. When all of the ballets were in it was established that Ben Harpenau was the president. David Knox was pronounced vice president, Scott Lawalin, activities director, Ashley Williams, secretary and Vanessa Sprinkle, historian. To kick off the year they had their first ever Spanish/ French get-together at Fiesta Grande on Wednesday, September 19. As they gobbled down their beefy tacos and their cheesy enchiladas, Mrs.George went around and had "los estudiantes de espanol" (the Spanish students) speak Spanish for bonus. Picas, Pages, and Pride!

"Co-curricular activity" is such a small word for all the hard work that goes into putting a yearbook together. This was the first time in almost twenty years that yearbook was not offered as a class but as a club. This wasn't the only transition made. With a whole new inexperienced group of girls and a new adviser, Mrs. Jennifer Hall, there were a lot of things to be learned quickly. Deadlines, cropping pictures, formatting pages, interviewing, and taking pictures were common obstacles the yearbook staff had to overcome.

The staff started the year off with matching tie-dyed tee-shirts and a "Co-curricular activity" is yearbook sale. The staff met at 6:30 AM for donuts and instructions on how to fill out the proper papers necessary to complete the sale of a yearbook.

Casey Pierrard, Rachelle Doogs, Ashley Jefford, and Mrs. Hall attended a yearbook workshop at the University of Evansville at the start of the year. They learned the key steps it takes to make a yearbook successful. The staff worked diligently after school on Tuesdays and Thursdays and sometimes even during their lunch period. Crunch time came during the last two weeks of school, when the girls worked late nights and long hours after school. By. Casey Pierrard

The Students of Today are the Leaders of Tomorrow

The Student Council has put on many activities for the student body. For example, the club put on the annual Winter Dance on December 14th. Members also sponsored a week for collecting nonparishable items to send care packages to the soldiers in Iraq. This club also did their annual potato bar for Teacher Appreciation Week in May.

This organization sponsored the Fall Sports Extravaganza which consists of parading through Tell City and ending up at Legion Field. There, all of the coaches introduced their players, and the awards for most spirited during the parade were given. The shindig was then moved to the Driver's Education parking lot where DJ Chris Hawkins entertained everyone with his nonstop grooves.

Student Council also took a trip to Apollo High School, Mr. Stewart's previous workplace. The members got a feel for what a larger high school was like. "Apollo was a completely different atmosphere, but I learned a lot about the way a big school operates," junior representative Casey Pierrard stated.

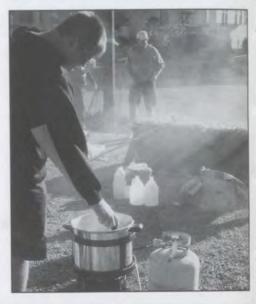

This year was the first year for a chair fundraiser by the Student Council. The members sold red and white folding chairs at football and basketball games enabling them to pay for the events they sponsored.

The students also staged a disaster drill for the Perry County Memorial Hospital emergency room by posing as disaster victims of an explosion. Injuries ranged from critical burns, chest injuries, impaled objects and fractured limbs to minor lacerations. In November, the students used part of their fundraiser money to purchase stuffed animals for Kosair's Children's Hospital in Louisville. Adrenaline Rush!

"I love to get up in front of people and put on a good performance because they paid to see it and that's what they should get. I really like the adrenaline rush!" quoted Spencer Gibson. He is among several people who felt the same way. During the school year the student body had opportunities to perform in two drama productions, "The Lottery" by Brainderd Duffield and "Plaza Suite" by Neil Simon. There were approximately 33 students who performed in one or both plays.

Auditions for "The Lottery" were held September 17 and 18. Regularly scheduled rehearsals began the 23rd and were held Monday through Thursday, 7:00 PM to 8:00 PM. The performances were held in the auditorium Friday and Saturday, November 22 and 23 at 7:00 PM and Sunday at 2:00 PM.

The spring play was composed of three lengthy acts. They all three involved suite 719 at the Plaza Suite Hotel. Vanessa Pierrard commented, "I was so excited to find out I got a lead role in the school play. I really didn't think I would get the part, but I'm glad I did because Ross McEntarfer is so fun to work with." Players in each act rehearsed once a week for three weeks. That was followed by full cast rehearsals until opening night. A week before the play the cast had dress rehearsals. The performances were Friday and Saturday, March 28 and 29 at 7:00 PM and Sunday at 2:00 PM. Both of the plays were under the direction of Mr. Dan Hall.

Prayer, Study, Action!

Christian Students in Action, known as CSA, debuted this year. The group consisted of over twenty members and was sponsored by Mr. Goffinet, Mrs. Kramer, Mrs. McEntarfer, and Mrs. Thomas. They met every Thursday for lunch in Mrs. Thomas' room, where they discussed a variety of topics, such as dating, sex, and accountability. "It's a great escape from the busy lunch time schedule," said Thomas Borders.

"See You At the Flag Pole" was arranged by members in September. Fellow students and staff members met at 7:15 AM in front of school to pray for our country, our leaders, and our students.

In December CSA hosted a "getting to know each other" event, where students and sponsors ate pizza and snacks, shared favorite Christmas memories, and played games. Erin Mahoney commented, "CSA is a great place to meet other Christian friends." They also collected money and bought Christmas gifts and canned goods for a less fortunate family in the community.

CSA was featured on the front page of the Life Style section in

The News in April. They also joined forces with Jan Sprinkle for a workshop on bullying, open to the public. That same month they hosted the CSA Jamfest. There were over 60 people in attendance, including students from local high schools. Holding Water, a Christian band from Evansville, performed. Attendees also played games, ate snacks, and brought instruments to use with the band.

In May, Clayton Jefford, a Doctor of Theology, answered religious questions that students asked during a lunch meeting.

CSA members chose to have T-shirts made with the verse Matthew 19:26, "With men this is impossible; but with God all things are possible" on them. Over the summer, they will also attend a three-day Christian concert in Cincinnati, Ohio.

"I think our first year went very well. The students wanted it and they made it happen," said sponsor Mr. Goffinet. "I'm looking forward to next year." By: Erin Emerson

Academic Super Bowl

There were five academic teams that went to Bosse High School on April 22 to compete in the Academic Bowl. These teams excelled in the departments of math, English, fine arts, science, and social studies.

The main theme of the year's academic competition was "The Middle Ages." Each team received twenty-five questions with twenty-five seconds to answer each question. One exception was in the math competition. Each team had forty seconds to answer each question.

The math team, made up of David Doogs, Craig Damin, Steven Morey, and Billy Kluender, placed third out of five other schools. They received fifteen points, not far behind the first place team with nineteen points.

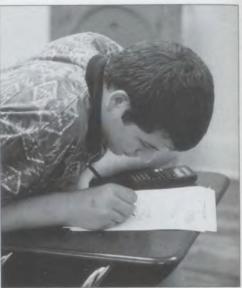

Amanda Fenn, Elizabeth Coultas, Vanessa Sprinkle, and Kaki Marcrum competed in the English competition. They placed second out of twenty schools at Bosse High School and eighth out of seventy-eight schools in the state. In preparation for the competition, they studied Dante's Inferno, The Canterbury Tales, and three other medieval romances.

The fine arts team consisted of Cortney Cail, Vanessa Sprinkle, Alecia Ouelette, Trisha Huffman, and Elise Pittman. They covered 450 years of art in England, France, and Germany.

The starters for the science team were Craig Damin, Steven Morey, and Heath Young. They tied for second place and received twelfth place statewide. Answering fifteen questions correctly tied them with three other schools that went to the state competition. However, unfortunately, they missed the tie-breaking question and did not qualify.

Paul Gravemier, Erin Emerson, Scott Lawalin, Don Steen, and Kaki Marcrum competed on the social studies team. They placed second at the competition and seventh statewide. ON THE ROAD TO WORLD FINALS

Upholding the tradition of rockin' percussion lines at Tell City, the drumline spent their winter season performing the music of the rock band lncubus.

After picking up a few hornline members out of the marching band to add to the pit and battery, the drumline started practicing in early November. They worked on perfecting the songs "Nice to Know You", "Clean", "Aqueous Transmission", and "Circles". Also in November, the drumline held their annual "Teeter-totter-Athon" to raise funds for equipment and travel. Members teeter-tottered and practiced for twenty-four hours straight.

The winter drumline attended four competitions. Their first was at Decatur High School in Indianapolis on February 8 and 9. They placed 4th out of ten lines.

Their next competition was on March 1 at New Albany High School, where they placed first. Regionals were next at Centerville High School in Dayton, Ohio on March 15 where the drumline placed fifth. World Finals was held in Dayton at the Nutter Center on April 10, 11, and 12. On the first day the line placed 9th, not high enough to compete any further. Despite their placing at World Finals, the drumline was very proud of their show and their season. Sophomore bass drummer Chelsea Wheatley stated, "My first year in drumline was an excellent experience, and I am definitely going to stick with it."

To continue the tradition of excellent music at TCHS, the drumline also performed their show on March 28th at the elementary school, encouraging the children to join band.

A Kingly Crew

Several students grumbled among themselves early in the year about not having an organized club in which to stage chess competitions. Having done research, they knew that all clubs must have a sponsor to be recognized. With this information, many sought the needed sponsor. Mr. Hall agreed to be the sponsor provided it would be a student organized and student-led club. Those who were interested agreed, and the new Chess Club was added to the offerings for students at the beginning of second semester.

The $2 fee collected went to purchase some chess boards and pieces so the members would have access to them at school. It was decided that a competition should be held as a play-off within the group. The membership was divided into three pools of about seven players each. Each student was responsible for contacting and playing in his or her pool and reporting the results back to Mr. Hall who kept a record sheet. The members who could not meet during study halls met on Tuesday mornings at 7:25 in Mr. Hall's room or on Thursdays after school in the auditorium to arrange matches.

During the meetings that were held, many members voiced ideas about future tournaments in the community as well as with other schools. Mr. Hall suggested that the club wait until next school year before launching any of those large undertakings. So, the stage is set and the members are ready to advance to more challenging matches in the coming year.

Working on their strategy, Thomas Borders and Heath Young practice their maneuvers on one another. Going somewhere quiet is usually the best place to play, but here they practice in the Library with the Yearbook Staff.

Anticipating their first meeting, the members of the Chess Club get ready to listen and learn. This is the first year Tell City High School has had a Chess Club. Above Right: Trying to follow Mr. Hall's lecture, the students learn some of the benefits of being in the club. Mr. Hall was nominated by the students who wanted our school to have Chess Club.

No matter where you go from here...

No matter how far you get...

Look to this patch.

This is the patch of those who have gone, and still will rise.

This is the patch of those with that fire in their eyes.

The fire of freedom that brightly burns,

Freedom, for which your heart yearns.

Freedom to speak...

Freedom to do...

Freedom that means so much to you.

Freedom from fear of the unjust,

Freedom from tyranny's mighty lust.

This patch is a military patch you see, it belongs to someone who'll watch over you and me.
